REGENERATION OF TISSUE AFTER TREATMENT

Every skin type is individual and reacts in different ways to the treatment. Depending on the amount of herbs used as well as the duration and pressure level of the massage, the skin can peel more or less extremely and activate its own regeneration processes. The extent of visible peeling is not a quality characteristic for skin regeneration. This has been substantiated by scientific studies.

Epidermis

Corium

The ultrasound examination carried out after the treatment shows a significant thickening of the skin.
